Subject: "Targeted Protest" Proposal

Dear Manhattan Beach Council Members:

The report of your consideration of a "targeted protest" ordinance had me shaking my head in disbelief. This city is so densely populated, how are protesters supposed to stay 150 feet away from a property line? That would put them in a neighbor's back yard or across the street in somebody else's front yard. The current "sidewalk rule" works well throughout the country. Leave it alone.

The consideration of an ordinance such as this raises concern, not the least of which is protecting the right to protest perceived injustice. Evidently the owner of the MB home being picketed had recently evicted a family in another city. I'm pretty sure the evicted family also felt "trapped and terrified." Developers who profit by throwing people into the street should feel some heat.

So, do we now get concierge ordinances from our Council? If so, I would like Council to consider keeping noise from parties at least 150 feet away from all property lines. I would also like an ordinance to keep pooping dogs at least 150 feet from private property. And while you are at it, please keep noise and trucks from McMansion construction 150 feet from property lines.
