Question 6

Are you serious with this survey?!?! There are a million other needs in this city and you're sending out surveys about renaming a street?!?! There is a desperate need for stop signs and speed humps around the schools in this city. Far too many people use the same routes as a cut-through. People speed constantly and have no awareness of the children running throughout. The beaches have become ridiculously overcrowded and now seem to be a very popular destination for European tourists. Maybe someone should figure out how to best educate them on the functionality of a crosswalk? It would also be nice to see someone take charge of the "retailer" encroachment on the beach. I have no interest in some dude slinging ice cream while I enjoy the beach with my family. When did it become acceptable or legal for vendors to drag their ice cream carts up and down the sand or to sell necklaces. Is Manhattan Beach turning into the Caribbean? Maybe we can have a woman set up shop to braid the hair of all these European tourists? There are very few people in MB who rely on tourism for their livelihood. Even the store fronts and restaurants did fine with the business from the well-off local inhabitants. I understand that we have to grow and progress as a city, and that it's tough to control visitors, but the conversation is not even being held publicly. Yet we're talking about the name of a street?!?! Oh ya, the ridiculous scooters!!! Hopefully there is a conversation, somewhere, on how to handle this. I commute up through Venice and Santa Monica for work and they are an absolute nuisance up there. They cut in front of my car hopping on and off the sidewalk and they are involved in endless accidents with pedestrians. And now I'm starting to see them littered around my neighborhood in people's driveways and laying across the sidewalks. Hopefully there is a team looking into how best to control that influx, as it has already begun. I think the scooters are great, and will reduce car traffic, but they obviously need regulation. But yes, by all means, let's discuss the name of a street.

Question 6

California's coastline is very unique and PCH is a great highway running much of that route (655.8 miles). PCH is synonymous with the beach and MB is a great beach town. PCH is our Route 66 and it seems disingenuous to call it Sepulveda. I tire of explaining that Sepulveda in MB is really PCH to visitors, friends and clients. Councilmember Napolitano informed me that Sepulveda has always been named Sepulveda. My response would be that, at the time, the representatives or officials were probably paying homage to Spanish or Mexican influences but things have changed significantly since that time. Our homage should now be to the California lifestyle and the beach that has been of significant benefit to all residents and business owners. I am aware a change would cost affected business owners as they will have to change letterhead, advertising and marketing items. Because of this, maybe a phase in period would be helpful to allow the business owners time to use up existing stock, make changes as renewal periods come up and so on. I also imagine there will be some cost to the city. I for one would be more than happy to pay my share of the cost or contribute to a fund designed to help minimize the cost to the city.

We are one of the few towns in California that get to be connected to such an iconic highway. Because of this, we should welcome every bit of the intangible benefits coming from that connection. If Sepulveda is renamed, Manhattan Beach will become a little bit more special in the minds of every other California resident. I don't want MB to be good, I want it to be great.

Question 6

Bit by bit we are losing the roots and history of these old beach towns. I am in development, I understand completely change and gentrification, however THIS is not something that NEEDS to be altered. For years this has been an education process to people from out of town who don't understand how it goes from PCH to Sepulveda to PCH again. What's the big deal? This is our town, our roots, please keep some things that really don't make any significant difference - only to that of knowing where things come from - important. Otherwise, we are probably only a couple years from being renamed 'Sketchers Beach' because that's what people are saying. Change is constant, this small thing doesn't need to be touched. Go back to dealing with real matters like, the telephone polls and the views that were promised decades ago. Or, street sweeping on the bike paths that actually save people from getting injured, not just sweeping alleys and streets everyday of the week. How about following in SM footsteps in creating at least one access point for wheelchairs to get to the water from the Strand? What about trying to find a way to reduce downtown traffic and bring back the Downtowner? There has to be a way with all that the city collects in parking tickets to fund this little cart. Something that residents loved, it answered safety, traffic, stimulated revenue with local retailers, and opened up additional parking. Hard to believe we couldn't find a way to keep this 'innovative' solution. Happy to discuss further on all the above. But - let's keep Sepulveda for 'roots sake'.

What reason could we as a city have for not participating in this name change? We suddenly care about history now? Since when? The Historical Society has zero political power, the cities historical preservation program has zero teeth, the city allows any building, regardless of historical significance to be torn down, we as a city don't repair historical buildings, we replace them. There are MANY things we as a city can do to reflect and hold on to our past, and a street's name change isn't even in the top ten. This is a non issue. And to be honest, aren't we talking about a Spanish Land Grant on property that was stolen

I'm not a strong opponent and the consistency with the other So Bay cities argument makes sense. However, unless the businesses and residents who have Sepulveda addresses are having problems b/c of the lack of consistency, I think there must be more important issues for the City Council to discuss and work to resolve impacting Manhattan Beach.

Sepulveda in Torrance does not hook up with PCH & probably never has. With such a small slice of Sepulveda left in MB it is very confusing. If it is changed, auction off the old signs (I am sure people would want a piece of local history). Community Survey: Renaming Sepulveda Boulevard to Pacific Coast Highway

Should Sepulveda Boulevard be renamed Pacific Coast Highway?

Since most of the survey respondents so far are residents, I am wondering what the business community consensus is, and what the costs to businesses could be. It sure seems logical to change the name to Pacific Coast Highway, considering that Manhattan Beach is now an outlier in the South Bay. Consistency just makes sense. And I would guess that there aren't that many residents or business owners who are truly sentimentally attached to Sepulveda Blvd.

This is a silly issue to be discussing. Changing the street name would be costly to local businesses who would have to change signage and paperwork and the like. Moreover, the road isn't even along the coast, so I'm not sure how Pacific Coast Highway is more fitting this beach city.

Question 6

It is neither on the Pacific Coast nor a highway. It conveys a (somewhat) fast-moving road along the coast, not a congested street with stoplights every few blocks. I associate the name with the stretch of PCH by Malibu. Naming the street in Manhattan Beach PCH is deceptive. It is also a needless expense, both for the city and businesses. Lastly, Sepulveda is an historical Los Angeles name; Pacific Coast Highway could be anywhere from Nome to Tierra del Fuego. The fact that our neighbors have chosen to make an ill-advised decision should to compel us to follow suit.

Community Survey: Renaming Sepulveda Boulevard to Pacific Coast Highway

Should Sepulveda Boulevard be renamed Pacific Coast Highway?

Question 6

Why erase our history entirely?

We don't need any of the reasons in the renaming argument.

I think it's mostly because people have heard PCH used on TV a lot. We're better than that.

They can't be on the sidewalk and shouldn't be on the street (regardless of the street name!); people drive poorly enough here as it is.

Question 6

"Consistency" is a poor reason... There was consistency from Artesia Blvd North all the way to the Valley. Developers decided they could push El Segundo into the change and then make Manhattan Beach look stupid if MB did not change it as well. It's all about the developers and hotels making more money --- the business tenants will all pay more in rent and anyone visiting MB or paying for a hotel (with a new higher rate) on "Pacific Coast Highway" will be scammed into thinking they will be near the ocean or have a view of the ocean. Deceitful at best!!! 1) It's not on the Coast! 2) it's not a highway!

Question 5

- Historical value attached to Sepulveda Boulevard

Question 6

In these times, there is so little attention to preserving the historical roots of our surroundings. So little value given to remembering how things used to be. As a resident for 52 years, keeping the memories of the small community town that MB used to be is important. Remind the kids of WHY they like MB -- it has lost so much of the community environment already.

Keeping the Sand Dunes, especially open to the residents; preserving some of the marsh at Polliwog Park; the Historical building in the Park; the Art Center building that used to be a library for all the East MB kids to walk to.

Save what you can. It can never be replaced once taken away and whatever modern replacement will have no value any longer.

Community Survey: Renaming Sepulveda Boulevard to Pacific Coast Highway

Should Sepulveda Boulevard be renamed Pacific Coast Highway?

Question 5

No response

Question 6

I think it's a good idea. It's weird for a street to be PCH for a long long way (Santa Monica, Malibu, et al) then go from "PCH" in El Segundo, to "Sepulveda" in Manhattan (for only a mile or so), to "PCH" again in Hermosa. Also because Sepulveda already exists in Torrance and it goes more east/west. Having Sepulveda go one direction in Torrance and then another in Manhattan is strange and confusing. The South Bay has a long piece of road that runs parallel to the beach. If Hermosa and El Segundo are already calling that road PCH, I think it makes sense for Manhattan (sandwiched in between the two and also is such a small strip of road) to follow suit and be changed to PCH.

Question 6

Pacific Coastal is such a generic name, makes me think of Malibu and Long Beach.

I was happy to learn, I think it was in the Point Vicente Interpretative Center in PV, that Sepulveda was the name of one of the original developers of the area. Renaming it would be like renaming Wilshire Blvd. These people earned to have their names there because there was nothing before they came here and put all their vision and efforts into developing these areas! I have a lot of respect for that. Also Sepulveda is a name in Spanish, which also speaks of the mexican heritage we have in the area, which shouldn't be paved up with generic names in English. The area would lose charm and authenticity.

It's a lot longer name. It sounds sort of cookie cutterish, almost machine generated. It is not the mission route—that is inland where the missions are. Dissing our Spanish forebears is disrespectful. History is something we should honor and not forget especially just because someone thinks it will be good for business. IMO that's a bad reason to do anything.

Question 6

If it is decided to change the name I'd suggest giving business owners on the Blvd.sufficient time to prepare their letterhead, business cards and website to reflect the name (e.g. a year).

Also, thank you for asking!

Having grown up in Hermosa Beach, we always referred to it as PCH--not Sepulveda, so it's confusing to have two names attached to it.

Question 6

I agree with the conservancy's position. "Our City's history is slowly being eroded and lost. Let's preserve what we can for future generations."

It's important to preserve the history of Manhattan Beach! What do you say to the descendants of Francisco Xavier Sepulveda? That a vanity address is more important than keeping their legacy intact?

"The name Sepulveda refers to the family and heirs of Francisco Xavier Sepulveda (center), who in 1781 at the age of six accompanied his father, a Spanish colonial soldier, who took part in the establishment of the Los Angeles Pueblo. The highway, Sepulveda Bl., was once a dusty trail that began as the northern boundary of Rancho de Los Palos Verdes and proceeded north across the San Fernando Valley floor to the town of Sepulveda (later to be renamed Mission Hill. As the trail developed it became extremely important to the South Bay."

Question 6

This change is simply a vanity address desired by special interests that seem to get what they want, but it will hurt other smaller businesses. The "consistency" and "confusion" arguments are clearly refuted by over 50 years of the Sepulveda/PCH change at the Hermosa border, as well as modern gps nav systems. The "prestige" argument often claims a financial benefit that is unsubstantiated, and would be minuscule at best. The "more fitting of a beach city" argument would suggest that we need to change Duncan, Peck, Dianthus, Rosecrans, etc., to "beachier" names. Preserve our history!
