

MAYORS YOUTH COUNCIL

Manhattan Beach Mayors Youth Council

www.citymb.info/MayorsYouthCouncil

Summary

This proposal is to create a Mayors' Youth Council in the City of Manhattan Beach ("MYC"). The annual program would commence with the September 2011 school year and carry through May 2012.

Youth Councils and Commissions are as varied as they are many. Last year we piloted a youth project called the Costa-Council Project. It was a great experience for the teens who participated, and both the school district and city are ready to offer this to more of our kids. (Background on the Costa-Council Project is below.)

The idea for the Manhattan Beach MYC is to provide a forum to engage our teens about issues that matter to them, and to educate our teens about how decisions are made in their government, community and private sector as well. These teens will have an opportunity to work with other stakeholders and to apply what they learn.

The MYC program will serve Manhattan Beach resident teens, and be a collaboration of efforts between the City, Mira Costa High School and participating high schools, and outside guests from the business, philanthropic and local community.

The value and appeal of the Mayors Youth Council to both teens and community are many. Purposes include the following:

- To expose young adults to leaders in the public, private and philanthropic arenas of our local community
- To raise their awareness of the importance of civic engagement and to encourage their community stewardship
- To provide a uniquely organized opportunity for them to make a difference beyond their school and home environment by collaborating and engaging with other community stakeholders
- To compliment their academic study of government and leadership with real-time, hands-on experience

Structure

We recommend the following structure (based on research of twenty-plus successful youth councils in California and outside):

- 15 teens (+/-)
- One year term, September – May
- Regular monthly evening meeting, 6:00 – 7:30 pm, Chambers or PF Comm. Room

Staffing

- Chair: Mayor or designated city councilmember (1 as back-up) to run the show (9 meetings)
Advisor: One (1) School Advisor/Liaison: high school teacher or staff person to coordinate logistics and liaison, as needed
- One (1) City Staff Liaison: to coordinate logistics (agenda, guest speakers, off-sites, room & snacks)(City Clerk or Deputy Clerk suggested)

Communications

- Webpage (interactive) devoted to Mayors Youth Council. Photos of teens, advisors, agendas, projects, contact info., etc. Link to participating highschools and MBUSD websites.

Budget

- Staff time 5-10 hours per month
- Training materials; snacks
- Transportation to offsites if outside of city

Timing

- Publicize early April 2011
- Applications submitted end of April 2011
- Selection beginning May 2011 (if open enrollment, all admitted. If limited, council/school vote)
- Initiation meeting end of May 2011
- Program commences September 2011

Becoming a Participant

- Manhattan Beach resident attending any high school
- Attend regular monthly meeting plus monthly offsite/event
- The term is for one year, September ~ May
- Motivated and committed to actively participate
- Submit application on line or hard copy by April X, 2011.

Application may be downloaded at www.citymb.info/Mayor'sYouthCouncil. Hard copy applications are available with the City Clerk, City Hall, 1400 Highland Street, Manhattan Beach, CA 90266

Content and Agenda

Over the course of the year, the MYC program will consist of two things:

- First, the teens will meet and interact with leaders of the public, private and philanthropic arenas.
- Second, the teens will engage in leadership learning experiences, by teaming up with other local groups to participate in or initiate community events. These events will teach them how to make team decisions, plan, organize, delegate, perform, and own the project.

Leadership Guests and Off-site Events

Each month will feature an invited guest leader. Leaders will prepare their own exciting and interactive presentation. Included will be an invitation to "field trip" with the kids to their place of business or otherwise. The interaction with these leaders and the immersion into their arenas should serve to stimulate interests and passions and encourage exploration and action.

As part of the public/government leadership arm, MYC teens will attend a few council meetings, and commission meetings if there is interest (e.g. Sand Dune interested many Costa-Council kids last year!).
*See below for Guest Prospects and Topics

Leadership Learning in Action

The teens will be asked to explore what they care about, and to select an initiative. As part of this, they'll research and outreach to various community interests. They will discuss their findings and vote on which endeavor to engage. They'll then parlay roles and responsibilities, and carry them out. They can plan their own event and also can contribute to planned events such as the centennial. Other youth councils have carried out fundraisers for school or community objectives, organized public debates and speak-easies on topics of concern for teens (such as drug and alcohol use), or community-wide issues (such as how a new county library can serve the needs of teens and also seniors). (For the first year, we will recommend that find an initiative already in the making by another local group.)

Background History

Costa~Council Project - During 2009, the Mayor and City Council along with Mira Costa High School ran a pilot program called the Costa~Council Project. During these nine months, the teens complimented their academic study of government with exposure to real live local government. Students attended city council meetings, and then discussed issues with the Mayor and City Councilmembers. Each month, the Mayor and City Councilmembers attended Mira Costa teacher Andy Caine's government class. At the end of the project, students were asked to present their experience in public before the full body council. Presenting students were awarded Certificates of Recognition by the City Council. (Attached is the Costa-Council Project documentation.)

Leadership Manhattan Beach - For decades, Manhattan Beach, along with many other cities, has had community leadership programs (Leadership Manhattan Beach). These are nonprofit organizations partially funded by government, private donation and participation fees. The purpose of these programs is to introduce adults to local government and to develop leadership skills in the participants. The Leadership Manhattan Beach program includes five high school students per year for this program. The few teens who get to participate in LMB gain valuable knowledge about local government and community leadership, but the program is overwhelmingly geared toward and dominated by adults. There is a need for a program that places young people front and center where they are entrusted with formulating opinions and ideas and carrying them out.

And NowThe Mayor's Youth Council. The students of Costa-Council shared a lot of good feedback from this pilot program. Andy Caine and those who participated came away with valuable "lessons learned" and are ready to move ahead. Mira Costa is filled with bright minds – ready for exposure to the adult world. The City Council and School District are now eager to launch a permanent youth leadership program, and recommend forming the Manhattan Beach Mayor's Youth Council (MYC) to commence in 2011.

Costa Council Project

January 2010

Project Goals and Plan

The goal of the Costa-Council Project is to complement our students' academic study of government and public policy by exposing students to real time local government process and public policy making.

Students will attend council, commission and task force meetings. Councilmembers will meet periodically/monthly with the students to discuss their experience and provide direction.

Students may choose to study the governing process in general, and/or may select a specific issue to follow. For those who want to study the process, it is recommended that students attend as many council meetings and commission meetings as feasible. For students who select a specific issue to follow (such as Sand Dune Park), they will want to find out the dates that council and commissions/task force plan to address the specific issue. Councilmembers and Commissioners will work with students on these issues and to determine hearing dates.

At the end of the project, students will share their experience with the full council body at a council meeting. In preparation for this "finale" event, we will all meet together to formulate our "Report on Council" to council. All students will elect two or so student representatives to speak on their behalf before council. All students will contribute to the report, and attend the council meeting the evening of their report. We'll celebrate somewhere thereafter, too.

There is no grading or evaluation of students. This is meant to be an eye-opening, fun, learning experience together.... I imagine that Councilmembers and Commissioners will be happy to provide letters of recommendation for college and jobs once we get to know each other and work together. ☺

Time Frame

Part I: January ~ June 2010

Part II: July ~ December 2010

Costa-Council Group Meetings

First – January 13, Lunch, Andy Caine's Classroom 221

Second – February - To Be Determined – We'll communicate via Email

Getting Started

Go to our city website at www.citymb.info

Peruse the site for issues that interest you, such as Going Green, etc. Go to the City Council as well as the Commission sections and read some agendas. Play around.

Review City Council's Work Plan for 2010 on our website at <http://www.citymb.info/Index.aspx?page=723>. This is the list of issues that Council has selected to focus on this year.

You may also contact our Interim City Manager, Richard Thompson, to ask about specific issues, process, etc. His telephone number is 310.802.5053. My number is 310.991.7366 (Portia). Richard Montgomery's is 310.780.3577. Wayne's is 310.896.1008.

I encourage students to attend council meetings and commission/task force meetings together, even if you are focused on different issues or processes. It is always good to discuss your impressions with each other.

Subject: Costa-Council Project: First Meeting Wed. Jan 13 Lunchtime at Classroom 221

Hello, Costa-Council Students!

Happy Holidays!

We are excited to hold our first meeting with you to launch what we are calling the Costa-Council Project. Please plan to attend this meeting, on Wednesday, January 13th, during lunch period (12:21 PM), at Andy Caine's classroom #221. *Please share this email with your other students, clubs and teachers who may be interested in participating.

At this meeting we will discuss a structure for the program, time frame, mutual goals and responsibilities, and answer any questions you may have. (If you are not able to attend this meeting, please notify me via email, and we will make other arrangements with you to get you up to speed.)

The Costa-Council Project is an externship program to complement your academic study of government and public policy. By attending City Council meetings and commission meetings, you will pair your studies with actual, real-time exposure to local politics. This will present an opportunity for you to meet and discuss issues with the mayor, council members, commissioners and city staff. You will gain access to decision makers and learn the complexities of policy making and implementation.

The project will begin in January, 2010. The first City Council meeting of the year will be held on Tuesday, January 19th. All council meetings are held the first and third Tuesday evenings of each month. Commission meetings are held during the week in the evenings. Specifics can be found at our city website: www.citymb.info

We are very excited to launch this project with you! Kindly reply to confirm your attendance at our January 13th meeting. Also, if you have any questions, just ask! Please share this email with other students, clubs and teachers who may be interested in participating.

Cheers and Happy Holidays!

Subject: Costa-Council Project - First Meeting - Wednesday, Jan 13,

Importance: High

Hello, Costa-Council Students ~

This is a reminder that we will hold our first meeting for our Costa-Council Project this Wednesday, January 13th, during lunch period (12:21 PM), at Andy Caine's classroom #221. *Please share this email with other students, clubs and teachers who may be interested in participating.

At this meeting we will discuss a structure for the program, time frame, mutual goals and responsibilities, and answer any questions you may have. (If you are not able to attend this meeting, please notify me via email, and we will make other arrangements with you to get you up to speed.)

The Costa-Council Project is an externship program to complement your academic study of government and public policy. By attending City Council meetings and commission meetings, you will pair your studies with actual, real-time exposure to local politics. This will present an opportunity for you to meet and discuss issues with the mayor, council members, commissioners and city staff. You will gain access to decision makers and learn the complexities of policy making and implementation.

The project will begin in January, 2010. The first City Council meeting of the year will be held on Tuesday, January 19th. All council meetings are held the first and third Tuesday evenings of each month. Commission meetings are held during the week in the evenings. Specifics can be found at our city website: www.citymb.info

We are very excited to launch this project with you! See you this Wednesday.

Cheers and Happy New Year!

Subject: Costa-Council Project - Attend Council Meeting Tues. Jan. 19 ~ 6:30 PM

<< File: Costa-Council Project.doc >> << File: Costa-Council Roster.doc >>

Hello Costa-Council Students,

Thanks to those of you who were able to attend our first meeting last Wednesday! For those of you who could not attend, I have attached a short memo which I handed out last week that summarizes the goals and plans for the project.

Your next move is to show up this Tuesday evening at our first Council Meeting of the year, Tuesday, January 19th, at 6:30 PM at City Hall Council Chambers. It's not mandatory to attend, but it really would be good for you since we are kicking off a new year with a new mayor. Also, this will be a highly controversial meeting because Council will determine the near term fate of Sand Dune Park. The meeting will run late, so leave when you've had enough! I am attaching a roster of students, if you'd like to contact some of them to attend together. Just find a seat in the audience and listen and observe. Of course, on any subject, you are free to come to the podium and comment when the Mayor opens the discussion up to the public.

I will email you in the next few weeks to schedule our second meeting. At that time, please make sure you've looked at our City Website, and the Work Plan (on the website), etc. Also, if you can attend a commission meeting or two, please do. Some commissions are more active than others during certain times, so check out their Agendas on the city website.

Hope to see you this Tuesday!

Cheers!

City of Manhattan Beach, CA
pcohen@citymb.info

Hi there, Costa-Council Students,

For those of you who attended the last Council Meeting, thank you, and congratulations on your perseverance as we took hours of public testimony and then deliberated on our direction for Sand Dune Park. Perhaps you left with some disillusionment that, after such an intense public meeting, plus previous commission and council meetings, council and city staff still have more work to do and decisions to make on the fate of the dune! Well, welcome to public policy making! It is frustrating. It is democracy at work. However, is argued by many wise and learned souls to be the best of all forms of government worldwide, to date. You will form your own educated opinion as you continue to expose yourself to world affairs, both here and abroad.

But enough of that for now! Your next step is to attend if you can our next COUNCIL MEETING, this TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 2nd, at 6:30 pm. Here is the link to the council agenda:
<http://www.citymb.info/agenda/2010/Ag-Min20100202/Agenda.html>

Then, we will hold our second COSTA-COUNCIL SCHOOL MEETING on WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 10th, during LUNCH-12:21 PM, at Mr. Caine's Room 221. When we meet, we'll discuss the last council meeting – your impressions, questions, etc. We'll also talk about specific issues coming before Council and the commissions. I'd like for you to browse the city website and local papers (The Beach Reporter, Easy Reader, The Manhattan Sun, The Daily Breeze, etc.) and perhaps city blogs for the purpose of deciding if there is a particular interest (or two, or three) that you may want to follow and focus on. You may decide to follow the general process instead. To help with your decision, log on to the City Website at www.citymb.info. Go to City Government, City Council, 2009-2010 Work Plan at <http://www.citymb.info/Index.aspx?page=723>. The "Work Plan" contains short descriptions of topics that Council has chosen to review this coming year. See if something intrigues you (or at least piques your interest!). We'll briefly talk about these when we meet.

Okay, so you have two meetings to attend and some research to do. In the meantime, you are always welcome to contact Council Members or Mr. Caine with any questions.

Cheers!

Costa-Council Students,

Thank you to those who attended our meeting at Mr. Caine's classroom last week. Some of you were away with Model U.N., and we missed you.

Your next step is to attend tomorrow night's City Council meeting. You can view the "Agenda" by scrolling down below.

After tomorrow night's council meeting, I would like for each of you to email to me your thoughts and impressions of the process and/or content of the council meetings so far. Include comments about previous council meetings and/or commission meetings you attended or watched from home.

We are beginning our feedback phase from you, in preparation for your collective report to council in a few months. Each student is expected to provide feedback and to contribute to the report. We will discuss and begin to compile your collective comments during our next meeting at Mr. Caine's office, date to be determined. Remember, no comment or question is inappropriate. All are encouraged. Please email your comments and questions to me, and I will compile them and share them with the full council.

Hope to see you tomorrow night!

City Council Meeting

Date: 2/16/2010 6:30 PM - 11:30 PM

Location: Council Chambers

1400 Highland Avenue

Manhattan Beach, California 90266

 Add to my Outlook Calendar

City Council meetings are held on the first and third Tuesday of every month at 6:30 PM. Meetings are subject to change in the event of a National or State holiday. Check the City Calendar to note any changes in Council Meeting schedule.

Meetings are broadcast live through Manhattan Beach Local Community Cable, Channel 8 and Live Webcast via the City's website. Post meetings are rebroadcast at 12:00 PM and 8:00 PM Thursdays and Saturdays following the Tuesday meeting on Channel 8 (Time Warner) and Channel 35 (Verizon).

For more information on City Council meetings, check out the City Council Meetings and Agenda's page.

Hi Costa-Council Students,

Tomorrow night Council meeting night (Tuesday, March 2, 2010). Please plan to attend. As an FYI, you can plan to have dinner and come at 7:00 p.m. which is when we tend to finish up our Ceremonial Calendar and get to the agendized issues. Here is the agenda link:

<http://www.citymb.info/agenda/2010/Ag-Min20100302/Agenda.html>

Secondly, I want to check in with those of you who have not yet emailed to me your observations and impressions of council meetings and/or commissions so far. To help you formulate your feedback, consider some of these questions:

Sand Dune Park: Did you think that the sand dune park users and resident neighbors were polarized in their respective views, or do you think that they can settle for a reasonable compromise solution? (Note that we plan to have a study session and a council meeting discussion on sand dune park in April. Dates tbd.)

Utility Undergrounding: Last October Council dissolved two utility undergrounding districts, 8 and 13. In February, Council moved forward Districts 12, 14 and 15. The details made the difference, so Council stated. Did they to you? How do you think this decision fared? How about the process?

Parking Meters: The down town business owners expressed opposition to raising the meter rates up from .75 cents per hour in this time of economic downturn and sales decline. At the same time, the city needs money to make up for the lost revenues from slumped sales taxes and property taxes. How do you think Council did in its decision to raise the meters to $1.25 per hour and to extend the meter coverage 2 additional hours? Do you think it will hurt business down town?

First Amendment Freedom of Speech: Our Council Agenda allows people to speak on every issue agendized, as well as non-agendized issues under Community Announcements and Audience Participation. Recently, speakers have shown anger and have criticized council. How should the Mayor and Council handle such criticism?

These are only a few of the topics Council has discussed. Feel free to share any comments on content, style, process, procedure to date. It is important that each of you participate in providing feedback. Thank you!

Costa-Council Students,

Please attend tomorrow night's Council meeting (Tuesday, April 6, 2010). Come at 7:00 following the ceremonial items.

Two key issues are up tomorrow night: One, the fate of our largest contract – worth $25 million. Second, our famous Six-Man Volleyball Tournament and our International Surf Festival. Come be a part of it. Here's what's at stake:

$25,000,000 of YOUR (parent's) Money: Council and the public will debate the fate of the most expensive contract the city has ($25 Million), the solid waste and recycling contract. At issue is whether or not we should deal only with our current contractor, Waste Management, and renegotiate with them, or, open the bidding to all qualifying companies. Come hear the pros and cons of "open competition" versus "proven service," and more. How do we know if we will get the "best bang for our buck" if we don't allow all to compete? But if we chose a lower price, do we expose our community to inferior service? Come be a part of this decision!

Six Man V-Ball & Surf Fest: On Saturday, July 31, 2010, SIXTY THOUSAND people will flock our beach and city streets for the annual Six Man and Surf Fest to cheer on 200 volleyball teams compete and surfers do their thing. The number of spectators has grown exponentially in a short few years (1998 -2,000; 2002 -12,000; 2004 -20,000). Along with the people comes the partying. And the noise. And the litter. And so on. At issue is safety, and residential peace. Our police and safety crew can no longer handle this capacity, and so the question for us tomorrow night is, how will we ensure public safety and neighborhood peace; and where will we take the funds from in order to do this? Come and be a part of this planning, and when you take part in the events on ..., judge for yourself if the City did its job. Then help us do it better.

Here is the agenda so you can plan your evening: <http://www.citymb.info/agenda/2010/Ag-Min20100406/Agenda.html>

Stay tuned for our next meeting at Mr. Caine's office. I will email you the date and time. As always, feel free to contact me, the Mayor, or other city Councilmembers either individually or collectively at CityCouncil@CityMB.info

Dear Costa-Council Students,

Tonight is another opportunity for you to attend or watch from home the City Council Meeting. On tonight's agenda are a Climate Action Plan for the City, prepared by our Environmental Task Force; a City Trolley system to take kids, elders, and all to and from city destinations; field fees for Little League; designation of five city buildings as Culturally Significant Landmarks; prohibiting parking on certain areas of Sepulveda; a new sculpture to be placed at Metlox; designation of city funds to assess utility undergrounding; our Youth Recognition Award, and more. It would be great if one of our students would speak during the public participation period of an issue.

Also, we need every one of you to attend our next Student Meeting at Mr. Caine's Classroom: Monday, April 26th, Lunchtime. Bring your lunch if you want to. At this meeting, I will want to hear feedback from each of you – even if you've only watched council on TV or read about council action in the papers. Please be prepared to share your thoughts and observations. Thank you ~

Hope to see you tonight, and on the 26th ~

Subject: Costa~Council MAY 21 Lunchtime in Mr. Caine's Classroom 221
Importance: High

Hello, Costa Council Students,

Our next meeting at Mr. Caine's class room will be very important to our program. It will be held lunchtime on Friday May 21. Please bring your lunch. We are going to devote this meeting to developing your collective presentation to Council (to be made in June). I will ask each of you to contribute to the report by simply sharing your observations, impressions, comments, criticisms, suggestions, ideas, etc. I would like for two students to volunteer to take notes and compile the comments. I would like for at two or so students to volunteer to present your collective thoughts, etc. to council in June.

So, please start thinking about and writing down your impressions and thoughts of the council meetings and issues we've addressed since we first met. The student report will cover two areas (a) issues council has addressed; and (b) council process and procedure. All students can and should contribute to the content of this presentation, and help select specific students to make the actual presentation before Council. The Council presentation place either Tuesday June 1 or Tuesday June 15. We would like all the students to attend this presentation in support of the students who will present on your behalf.

Between now and the end of school, Council will meet 6 more times: Tues May 4, Tues May 18, Wed May 19 budget, Tues May 25 budget, Tues June 1 and Tues June 15. Remember also that the Commissions meet on weeknights at City Hall, as well.

To get you thinking about contributing to the presentation, here are some issues and questions:

- Sand Dune Park – Did the Council make the right decision to re-open the park this summer with a limited reservation system? In Was Council justified in deciding to allow limited walking on the dune after it had previously directed city staff in January to come up with a plan that did not include exercise? Read up on this at www.beachreporter.com, www.the.easyreader.com, www.patch.com.
- Utility Undergrounding – Did Council treat each district fairly by moving some forward but dissolving others? Was it right for Council to consider the poor economy when determining whether to allow districts to move forward? In your view, has council adhered to its own policies and procedures since it created the districting program?
- Down Town Parking Meter Rates – Last year Council lowered the meter rates when down (.75 cents/hour) town local businesses sought relief from the economic downturn. Recently, Council raised them back up again ($1.25/hour), and added an additional meter time in the morning and in the evening. The businesses argue that the economy is still bad and raising meters will hurt business. But the city counters that it is losing money on the low meter rates and needs to pay expenses. Thoughts on the process of this decisionmaking, and the outcome?
- Solid Waste & Recycling Contract – Despite the community's high satisfaction with our current waste hauler, Waste Management, Council decided to open up bidding to other contractors when the current contract with WM expires. The value of this contract, $28 million (+/-) is by far the largest use of taxpayer dollars for a single contract. WM still may bid for the new contract, but will do so with competitors. Was the decision to open the bid up best? Did council confuse the public and WM by trying to renegotiate with WM first, and then deciding to bid out?

- Centennial – Our city's 100 year birthday is coming up in 2012. Council is creating a committee of citizens to lead in creating a program of celebration for this centennial event. Should anybody and everybody be able to contribute?; or should council select a limited number of "qualified" people to determine how the city will celebrate its birthday?
- School Funding – Should the City contribute money to the School District?
- City Elections – Should the City Council hold its elections at the same time as the School Board elections? National elections?
- Trolley – Would you hop on a trolley if it took you to school or downtown and to the beach? Do you think the city should pay for this? Do you think riders should contribute to the cost? How much would you be willing to pay?
- Future of Environmental Task Force – Do you think energy and environmental stewardship is important enough to the city that a special city commission should be created to address those issues?
- Emergency Planning - Do you feel you know enough about what could happen to our city in the event of a major earthquake or other physical disaster? Should the city do more to educate people and prepare them for these events?

Council Process and Procedure Questions (you are not limited to these):

- Should ceremonial items remain the first thing on Council's agenda? Do they run too long? Should all ceremonial items be held in one night per month, leaving the alternative monthly council meeting just for substantive issues?
- Do you have any suggestions for council members or staff to limit length of council meetings?
- Do you think enough people attend council meetings? Speak?
- Do you think that council's decisions are clearly understood by the public? How can council improve?
- Do the newspapers report accurately and thoroughly?

You are not confined to the above issues or questions; Any issue or topic that you observed is fair game. IF you have any questions about this, please let Mr. Caine or me know.

I really look forward to hearing your comments on Friday May 21st.

Dear Ben, Adam, Zach and Suzanne,

Thank you so, so much for your dedication to our program! Your enthusiasm has kept my enthusiasm alive during these past months!

I must apologize for missing our meeting today. I arrived after you had met with Mr. Caine. Was stuck in traffic coming back from Santa Monica. Thank you for staying and meeting with Mr. Caine, and for preparing for the June 15th presentation.

Let me know how I can help you. I am here for you to assist in content, style, answer questions – you name it. I can meet with you in person, or we can communicate via email or phone – whatever works best for each of you. As a general guideline, try to prepare a report that takes about 15 to deliver.

Please let me know what you need from me.

I am so pleased that you will have this opportunity to present before the full council and the public. It will be forever memorialized on video, just so you know.... ☺

Dear Suzanne, Zach, Ben and Adam ~

Wow! You each rocked the house last night! You should be incredibly proud of yourselves. You had Council and the public audience on the edge of our seats with your insights and recommendations. I intend on memorializing your comments for the benefit of council and working with staff and my colleagues on implementing some of them (where there is agreement).

Best of luck on the completion of your school years. Have a fabulous summer!

Bravo. Congratulations. And thank you!

Youth Commissions and Councils Promote Leadership and Participation

Find this item at: <http://www.ca-ilg.org/node/902>

City and county youth commissions and councils provide opportunities for youth service and development and offer young people a means for their voices to be heard in local government decision-making. According to information gathered by the Institute for Local Government's Public Engagement and Collaborative Governance program, more than 100 such commissions are at work throughout California.

Youth commissions' work spans a wide range, as the following examples illustrate.

In La Cañada Flintridge, the youth council makes recommendations to the city council on youth-related issues. Its members serve as liaisons to community groups and contribute to a monthly column in the local newspaper. The youth council established objectives for a citywide youth master plan intended to encourage additional avenues for youth participation, and in 2007 members surveyed local businesses regarding tobacco sales to minors.

In Fremont, the youth advisory commission advises the city council on policy issues affecting young people and has worked with the Police Department on a proposed curfew ordinance. Each year, the commission also organizes a one-day Junior High Leadership Conference that helps junior-high school students prepare for the transition to high school.

In San Carlos, youth advisory council members are participating in the city's general strategic planning process as well as health and wellness programming and are preparing for "Youth Vote" during the November 2008 election. They have raised funds for a number of charitable activities, including a new youth center, and organize volunteer events to involve other youth in the community. San Carlos businesses that welcome young people receive a "Young Consumer Champion" award from the council.

The Pomona Youth Advisory Committee (PYAC) is working with the city and agencies serving youth to advocate for the development of a youth and family master plan to promote youth health and safety. In support of this work, PYAC hosts an annual mentor-protégé dinner to engage youth and adult leaders to partner on local issues. PYAC also partners with the City Clerk's Office and Los Angeles County Registrar-Recorder Voter Education Division to expand the Student Poll Worker Training to six local high schools. Youth commissioners also organize an annual "Rock the Vote" voter education event and have developed the Pomona Youth Leadership Network, composed of major youth-serving leadership groups, to bring more youth voices into city decision-making.

In El Dorado County, the youth commission helped write a Green Resolution and supported its successful passage. The resolution sets forth goals to lessen the environmental footprint of county residents in areas including waste and energy usage reduction, planning, construction and air quality. Members are presently engaged in developing partners and offering input related to possibly reopening the local skate park. The commission and University of California Cooperative Extension have also received grant funding to create maps of youth skills and resources in El Dorado County using GPS systems and mapping software. The maps will be used to create a guide for young people seeking school activities, clubs, health care, counseling and other resources. The commission hosted its first annual Youth Fest in July 2008, an all-day event for middle- and high-school youth.

The San Francisco Youth Commission is collaborating with the city's school district, Department of Elections and others on YouthVOTE, an election and civic engagement project that gives high-school students an opportunity to voice their opinions about current youth issues, ballot measures and candidates.

Impacts on Communities

Effective youth commissions and councils empower young people to bring about change in their communities. These forums can help identify the issues that are most important to these often overlooked members of the community and facilitate bringing youth ideas and recommendations to the attention of local policy-makers on a regular basis.

Youth councils and commissions can:

- Initiate educational campaigns;
- Encourage other young people to participate in local civic and political activities; and
- Create new community resources for residents of all ages.

Successful commissions and councils also provide an arena where youth voices are nurtured and the skills and habits of civic engagement and citizenship are acquired. For many youth commissioners, this experience is their first exposure to local government's role and function.

Key Elements of Successful Commissions

Each youth commission or council responds to community needs and the issues that led to its creation. While many factors contribute to their success, a few are particularly important.

Staffing. Commissions need staff who have the time to work with them and understand youth leadership, development and empowerment. Young people brought into such leadership and service roles need appropriate support, skills, confidence, networks and access to decision-makers, all of which require the time, commitment and consistent attention of skilled staff.

Diversity of Membership. As appropriate to each city or county, youth members should vary by geographic region, ethnicity, socioeconomic background and gender. Inclusiveness encourages equality, gives credibility to the commission and provides opportunities for youth to work toward a common purpose with others of different backgrounds and experiences.

An Appropriate Budget. Youth commissions require adequate resources to become active and effective and fulfill the purposes for which they were established. In addition to support for staff, resources may also include the costs of stipends for youth; meeting expenses, transportation and other costs associated with membership, meetings and participation; training and skills development to build commission competence and confidence; support for communication, education and outreach to increase youth and other public awareness of the commission; and expenses related to the specific projects and activities of the commission or council.

Youth Should "Own" It. Unless the budget, project selection and the commission meeting agenda are appropriately "owned" by the youth members, participation will often be lax and less focused. This doesn't mean members should work without guidance from staff or that encouraging greater ownership always succeeds. However, the best results usually occur when youth have had their own "Ah ha!" moment, have decided what needs to be done, and are carrying the work forward with support -- not direction -- from staff.

Access to Public Agency Decision-Makers. Creating an environment where youth voices are heard and respected is fundamental. When youth commissions are asked to provide input into actions or decisions of their local government, they must have regular access to appropriate information and the officials with whom they must communicate. Local agency commissions, councils and boards should provide information to youth commissioners and invite their participation.

The staff of departments whose work may be of particular interest to youth commissions should attend and report to commission meetings on a regular basis, and they should invite youth commission participation in their own meetings and decision-making process.

When creating public engagement processes for new local plans, budgets or other initiatives, youth commissions should be asked to help design vehicles to ensure youth participation.

Enhancing Youth Commission Capacity. Each youth member will bring his or her own strengths and interests to a youth commission or council. However, not everyone has the skills or experience necessary for successful participation. Provide an orientation, information-sharing sessions or training for youth appropriate to the commission's focus. Topics may include understanding local government, media advocacy, meeting facilitation, public speaking, community mapping, community dynamics, youth-adult partnerships and youth-led evaluation and research.

Focus Beyond Youth Commission Members. Although a youth commission may be composed of a diverse group of young people who act as the community's "youth voice," the experiences and opinions of one group cannot speak for all its peers. In order to represent the needs and concerns of its peers, a youth commission can conduct communitywide surveys and evaluations to determine the initiatives it will undertake. Broad outreach is an important component of youth commission success. Holding open forums to invite additional youth participation and input is a great way to strengthen and increase the commission's effectiveness.

Resources

The Institute for Local Government (ILG) is collecting youth commission-related stories from throughout California and posting them on its website along with a number of youth engagement and development resources (www.ca-ilg.org/youthengagement ^[1]). An ILG guide to developing effective youth commissions is forthcoming, and ILG's Public Engagement and Collaborative Governance program has initiated a tri-annual e-newsletter ^[2] for youth commission staff, which contains helpful ideas and resources.

Youth Dialogues Inform and Develop Local Leaders

BY GREG KEIDAN

Greg Keidan is program coordinator of the Institute for Local Government's Collaborative Governance Initiative and can be reached at gkeidan@ca-ilg.org.

Youth dialogues give teens an opportunity to hear varied perspectives, find common ground and gain the confidence to voice their opinions. Los Angeles, Santa Barbara and the Sacramento region offer examples of how youth-led dialogues can create positive change in communities and involve more young people in public decision-making.

Los Angeles Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa conducted a roundtable discussion with local youth in January 2009 to explore the issues facing young residents. Held at a school in South Los Angeles, the event involved about 55 teens from the neighborhood and local youth council.

Villaraigosa asked the youth council to plan more roundtables for young people in other areas of the large city. In response, youth council members facilitated a May 2009 event that engaged 20 youths from the San Fernando Valley. At this meeting, participants suggested a citywide dialogue to help young people from all of L.A.'s neighborhoods learn about the opportunities available to them through city and local nonprofit programs.

Discussions such as these enable youth commissions and councils to hear more numerous and diverse young voices and provide city leaders with a complete, balanced youth perspective. Teens also gain practical skills when they play an active role in organizing, facilitating and publicizing these efforts.

The Los Angeles Youth Council conducted its first citywide youth meeting on June 20, 2009. The mayor's office supported the youth council in planning and promoting the event, which drew 110 teens representing a range of neighborhoods and backgrounds to city hall on a Saturday morning.

Michele Segura, an eloquent youth commissioner, welcomed the participants and explained that the meeting's purpose was to share what was going on in their neighborhoods and learn how they could make a contribution that would impact and improve their community.

Los Angeles City Council Member Tom LaBonge shared his experiences as a former L.A. youth commissioner. He encouraged the teens to find their passion and take advantage of the opportunity to be heard. The teens then separated into four groups, by region, to take part in roundtable dialogues facilitated by Segura and other youth council members. As individuals in each group introduced themselves, the diversity of the gathering became apparent. Some participants came from suburban magnet schools, and others were living in drug and alcohol rehabilitation facilities. The teens discussed the neighborhood issues of greatest concern to them and what they would like to do to improve their communities.

Segura sees the roundtables as a way to introduce young people to involvement in local government. She says, "The real opportunity lies in following up with the youth who attended to make them feel they are a part of something meaningful, to connect them with networks of support and keep them coming back to have a voice in local government decisions." With the city facing difficult budget cuts that threaten youth recreation and education programs, youth council members have plenty of issues to raise.

In Santa Barbara, a youth council composed of 16 high-school and four junior-high students organizes "Youth Speak-Outs" twice a year. These forums give young people a chance to express their views on important local issues affecting both youth and adults. The youth council members collaborate with other area youth organizations and schools to draw hundreds of young people, who represent a broad cross section of the community, to these events. Topics addressed include teen violence, suicide, the media's influence on young people, graffiti, and teen drug and alcohol abuse. After each Youth Speak-Out event, youth council members present a summary of youth input on local issues to the mayor, city council and other relevant decision-makers.

According to Teen Programs Supervisor Susan Young, the Santa Barbara youth council has been very effective at creating positive change in the community. Youth council members have worked with local leaders to establish a teen center and skate park for their city. After a Youth Speak-Out last year on teen drug and alcohol abuse, the youth council made a presentation to the city council, asking it to consider passing a social host ordinance that would hold adults who host parties with underage drinking legally responsible. The city council members invited the youth council to work with them to write the ordinance, and two youth council members joined a city council committee that considered the issue. When the ordinance came before the city council for final approval, youth council members made a presentation in support of the ordinance. The city council voted unanimously to approve the social host ordinance in July 2008.

"The main advantage of Youth Speak-Outs is that they encourage young people to speak up in public about something they care about and to develop an ability and comfort with speaking out when they are given the opportunity to do so," says Young. This message is having an impact on the youth council members, who recently attended a city council budget review meeting and successfully petitioned the council to reconsider funding cutbacks that would have affected teen programs.

Young says that the most important strategy is involving youth throughout the planning and outreach process. The teens select topics that interest them and reach out to their peers by posting related information on their Facebook pages, making announcements at school and inviting their friends. They also advise adult staff on promotional materials that will appeal to teens.

Both Los Angeles and Santa Barbara are engaging a growing number of young people in city decisions and developing future leaders through youth-led dialogues with adequate support from city staff and the attention of elected officials. Through such dialogues, youth councils can include a broader youth perspective in their recommendations to city leaders. These events are also an opportunity to recruit new members, connect area teens to city and community services, build the capacity of area youth to lead and participate in public meetings and expose young people to new ideas and perspectives.

Teens Connect Regionally

More than 100 teens from cities throughout the Sacramento Valley region participated in a half-day Youth Leadership Retreat on Saturday, April 25, 2009, at the Wackford Community Center in Elk Grove. This event was the first of its kind organized by the Northern California Teen Resources Committee, a support network of parks and recreation staff and other adults working with youth groups in the Sacramento region. The group meets monthly to share best strategies and plan collaborative efforts.

To keep the teens engaged, the four-hour meeting alternated short presentations with team-building exercises led by Summer Thellman of the nonprofit Youth Development Network. Teens from Fair Oaks, Sacramento, Folsom, Elk Grove and El Dorado Hills made group presentations to share their efforts and activities with other youth in the region. The participants expressed excitement about seeing what other youth groups were working on in the region, and it was clearly a leadership-building experience for them to create a presentation (some included videos or slide shows) and speak in front of a large audience.

The Institute for Local Government (ILG) staff gave a brief presentation on the importance of inclusive public engagement and then facilitated a dialogue with the teens whose topics ranged from underrepresented groups to the essential things that youth commissions and councils need to succeed. The ILG presentation included a brainstorming session and prioritizing possible topics for future ILG Youth Commission Briefing Papers.
